The Most Popular Names in 2009

Meet Your Name, the leading personalized children's name completion and merchandise fast system. The names Kaito and Madison for boys and girls were the most popular names chosen by parents in 2009. While Isaac and Emma were the most popular names of the decade.

"We've seen more spelling variations of both of this year's top names than we imagined possible. Kaito has also been Kaiten, Kaito, Kaiti, and Kaito and Madison can be spelled Madisonne, Madeline, and Madeline," says Anne-Marie Cramer, Executive Producer, London, UK. "Parents like the sound of traditional names, but they also want to show the individuality of their children. Parents realize that the name they give their child will become part of the child's identity."

"Variations on the name Isaac are also dominating both boys and girl names—Isaac, Isagen, Isagen, Isagen, Isden. These names are gender-neutral and can also be spelled in many ways, hence their popularity among parents."

What will be big in 2010 and beyond?
"We predict that next decade is we'll see more Edwards and a lot more Madis being born due to the success of the leading Madison."
